Title: Great value cap

Comments: I bought this cap to accompany the re-stocked A4 Flight Suit. It's a really good cap for the price. Yes, you can pay about $100 more elsewhere for a replica B-1 but this is perfectly good for display or daily wearing without fear of ruining it. It could probably be improved with a nicer label and sweatband, but otherwise it's just the ticket.

Title: Caps, Flying, type B-1

Comments: - The ubiquitous/ iconic WW2 AAF Cap (as seen worn by everyone from the over-rated Tusk-ke-gee folks to the 20th AF B-29 Crews who leveled Japan under C. Lemay) - Well made, in a "correct" light OD khaki/ brown shade of gabardine wool, w/ leather sweatband, & "squared" visor; No USAAF Property ink stamp (some originals had them/ others no - still the stamps are avail. on ebay - if you choose to ink stamp 'your' Cap. - I'll only carefully remove the import tags, & add a FO bar to the front ! - Nice copy of an expensive/ scarce now, Cap (last mint original one I saw sold @ $200) - I'd probably purch. one more to wear around the "ranch". (it's a shame my Dad didn't keep his original)

Title: B-1 Flight Cap

Comments: The cap is worth the price, however I would consider having it made in a country thats not killing our soldiers, even if it means a few extra dollars, It's hard to find this cap for under 80.00, I think at 40.00 you would not lose customers. Also consider a WW2 mil spec label.

Title: US B-1 Flight Cap

Comments: Quality of materials and workmanship very convincing. Can't speak to the authenticity from a military point of view....I bought it as an old-style cap to wear hunting and fishing. I found the sizing....small. But maybe it's just my head.....

Title: Bombs away

Comments: Great B-1 that fits and looks great. WPG hit the bomb site again with quality. Nice leather sweatband inside like the original and color. Eastman is the only other company I've seen to offer this rare cap but their price is higher than a B-17. By a WPG B-1 and save money to afford the rest of your flight gear!
